Subject: Negotiation of Publishing Rights for [Project Title]

Dear [Co-Author's Name],

I hope this message finds you well. As we approach the completion of our project, [Project Title], I would like to take the opportunity to discuss the publishing rights and any related agreements for our co-authored work.

To ensure that both our interests are addressed fairly, I propose the following points for our negotiation:

- Division of royalties and advances.
- Credit attribution in publications.
- Language regarding adaptations and translations.
- Rights to self-archive or share the work in personal repositories.

Please let me know your thoughts on these points and if there are any additional aspects you would like to discuss. I believe that open communication will allow us to reach an agreement that benefits both of us.

Looking forward to your response.

Best regards,
