

Happy Anniversary!

Dear [Spouse's Name],

As we celebrate another year of love, laughter, and questionable life choices, I can't help but reflect on our time together.

Remember when we first got married? Back then, I thought you were perfect... and now I know you've only gotten slightly more perfect, like aged cheese. How lucky am I?

Every day, I choose to love you more, even on days when you steal the covers or insist on watching yet another rom-com for the millionth time. Who knew love could come with so many reruns?

This year, I promise to continue putting up with your, let's say, "unique" habits and your extraordinary talent for losing car keys. It's a gift, really.

Here's to more adventures, more laughs, and possibly more arguments over whose turn it is to do the dishes. May we never run out of pizza toppings or sarcastic remarks!

Love you heaps!

Sincerely, your forever partner in crime,

[Your Name]