

Dear [Brother/Sister's Name],

I hope this letter finds you in good spirits. I've been reflecting on my actions and how they may have hurt you, and I feel compelled to reach out and genuinely apologize.

It pains me to think that I've caused you any distress or sorrow. Our relationship means the world to me, and it breaks my heart knowing that I've let you down. I acknowledge that my words and actions were thoughtless, and I deeply regret the hurt I caused.

Please know that it was never my intention to upset you. You are not just my sibling; you are my confidant and friend. I cherish the bond we share, and I would do anything to mend the rift that has formed between us.

I am committed to making things right and ensuring that this doesn't happen again. Your feelings are valid, and I want to understand them better, so please feel free to share your thoughts with me.

Thank you for considering my apology. I miss you and truly hope we can move forward from this together.

With all my love,

[Your Name]
