

Letter to My Friend

Hey [Friend's Name],

I hope this letter finds you in good spirits! I just had to share this hilarious incident that happened to me the other day.

So, I was at the grocery store, minding my own business, when I decided to try out those self-checkout machines. You know how I am with technology, right? Well, I scanned a banana, but it somehow registered as a "premium avocado!"

Instead of fixing it, I panicked and accidentally hit the "weight unknown" button, which made the alarm go off! Everyone turned to look at me, and without thinking, I said, "It's a rare banana!"

As if on cue, an employee came over, trying to suppress laughter. He pointed out that I could simply weigh the banana, which I did, but I was already committed to my ridiculous story. I finished my checkout and left with my 'premium avocado'--a banana, of course!

Anyway, I couldn't stop chuckling about it for the rest of the day! I thought of you and how you would have turned that moment into a full-blown comedy show!

Can't wait to hear your thoughts on this! Let's catch up soon!

Best,
[Your Name]