I wanted to take a moment to reach out to you during this difficult time. I cannot fully understand the depth of your sorrow, but I want you to know that you are not alone. Please remember that it's okay to grieve and to feel all the emotions that come with loss.

In my heart, I hold you close, wishing to offer my silent support. If you need someone to lean on, I am here. Whether you need a listening ear or a comforting presence, please do not hesitate to reach out.

Take all the time you need to heal, and remember that brighter days will eventually follow. You have my deepest sympathies and all my love.
