I hope this message finds you well. I wanted to take a moment to follow up on our recent discussions regarding potential international growth opportunities.

As we explored, there are numerous markets that align with our strategic goals, and I believe a collaborative approach could yield significant benefits for both our companies. I am particularly interested in [specific opportunities or regions discussed].

Could we schedule a time to further discuss how we can move forward on this initiative? I am confident that our partnership can drive impressive results in these new markets.
